People in our country have the right for education. It is our Constitutional right. But it is not only a right, it is a duty too. Every boy and every girl in Russia must go to school, that is, they must get a full secondary education. So, when they are 6 or 7 years old they begin to go to school. There are thousands of schools in Russia. There are schools of general education, where the pupils study Russian (or a native language), Literature, Mathematics, History, Biology, Music, Arts, Foreign Languages. There is also a number of specialized schools, where the pupils get deep knowledge of foreign languages, or Maths, or Physics.

After finishing 9 classes of secondary school young people can continue their education at different kinds of vocational or technical schools or colleges. They not only learn general subjects, but receive a speciality there. Having finished a secondary school, a technical school or a college young people can start working, or they may enter an Institute or a University. Professional training makes it easier to get higher education. As for high schools, there are a lot of them in our country. Computers

Computer is an electronic device that can receive a set of instructions called program and then carry out them. The modern world of high technology could not be possible without computers. Different types and sizes of computers find uses throughout our society. They are used for the storage and handling of data, secret governmental files, information about banking transactions and so on.

Computers have opened up a new era in manufacturing and they have enhanced modern communication systems. They are essential tools in almost every field of research, from constructing models of the universe to producing tomorrow's weather reports. Using of different databases and computer networks make available a great variety of information sources.

There are two main types of computers, analog and digital, although the term computer is often used to mean only the digital type, because this type of computer is widely used today. That is why I am going to tell you about digital computers.

Everything that a digital computer does is based on one operation: the ability to determine: on or off, high voltage or low voltage or — in the case of numbers — 0 or 1 or do-called binary code. The speed at which the computer performs this simple act is called computer speed. Computer speeds are measured in Hertz or cycles per second. A computer with a «clock speed» of 2000 MHz is a fairly representative microcomputer today. It is capable of executing 2000 million discrete operations per second. Nowadays microcomputers can perform from 800 to over 3000 million operations per second and supercomputers used in research and defense applications attain speeds of many billions of cycles per second.

Digital computer speed and calculating power are further enhanced by the amount of data handled during each cycle. Except two main types of computers, analog and digital there are eight generations of digital computers or processing units. The first generation was represented by processing unit Intel 8086.

The second generation central processing unit was represented by processing unit Intel 80286, used in IBM PC AT 286. The third generation is Intel 80386, used in IBM PC AT 386. The microprocessors of the fourth generation were used in computers IBM PC AT 486. There are also central processing units of the fifth generation, used in Intel Pentium 60 and Intel Pentium 66, central processing units of the sixth generation, used in computers Intel Pentium 75, 90,100 and 133. Few years ago appeared central processing units of seventh and eighth generations. They are much more powerful and can perform from 2000 to over 3000 million operations per second.

1. What is computer?
2. What is the main purpose of all computers?
3. Where are computers used?
4. What is the index of computer speed?
5. What speeds do modern computers have?
6. How many generations of digital computer are there?
7. What is the first generation processing unit?

A hairdresser generally works in the commercial sector, offering a range of services and treatments to the hair for individual clients. There is a direct relationship between the nature and quality of the service required, and the payment made by the client. Therefore, the hairdresser has a continuing responsibility to work professionally and interactively with the client in order to give satisfaction and thus maintain and grow the business. Hairdressing is closely associated with other parts of the service sector, and with the many products that support it, normally for commercial purposes. Hairdressing also has an important therapeutic role in supporting individuals' self-esteem and confidence. It also helps to relieve the effects of illness, and can aid recovery. The hairdresser works in diverse environments including large, medium, small, or mobile salons, client homes and in product companies and training institutions, film and television productions, theatre, wig work, hair replacement, technicians, session stylists and product research and design. He or she may offer a wide range of services, including cutting, colouring, styling, chemical reformation and special hair treatments. Alternatively, the hairdresser may specialize, for example by becoming either a men's or ladies' hairdresser, or a colourist.

2. Ответьте на следующие вопросы:

1. Where does the hairdresser generally work?
2. What is hairdressing closely associated with?
3. Name the environments where the hairdresser works.

Work organization and management, communication and client care, the ability to analyse hair types and conditions, and to work safely and to manufacturers' instructions, are the universal attributes of the outstanding hairdresser. In a mobile labour market, the hairdresser may work in teams, or alone, or in both from time to time. Whatever the structure of the work, the trained and experienced hairdresser takes on a high level of personal responsibility and autonomy. From safeguarding the health and wellbeing of the client through scrupulous attention to safe working, to achieving exceptional effects for special occasions, every treatment matters and mistakes are largely irreversible. With the globalization of visual imagery, the worldwide market in hair and beauty products, and the international mobility of people, the hairdresser faces rapidly expanding opportunities and challenges. For the talented hairdresser there are many commercial and international opportunities; however, these carry with them the need to understand and work with diverse cultures, trends and hair types. The diversity of skills associated with hairdressing is therefore likely to expand, with the WorldSkills Competition reflecting the skills and attributes of the most outward looking and talented entrants to the sector.

1. What are the universal attributes of the outstanding hairdresser?

HAIR BIOLOGY & BONDS

Your hair is composed of keratin, a strong fibrous protein, and is built from cells similar to those of your skin. The average number of hairs on the human scalp is 120,000, although blondes tend to have more and redheads less. Hair is a remarkable fibre. A healthy hair can stretch up to 30% of its length, can absorb its weight in water and swell up to 20% of its diameter. A single scalp hair can hold a weight of 100g and an average head of hair twisted together can support 23 tons. However, this is only if your hair is in good condition!

DISULPHIDE AND HYDROGEN BONDS

Disulphide bonds are one of the strongest naturally-occurring bonds in nature. The protein structures of the hair shaft are held together by chemical bonds called disulphide and hydrogen bonds. While the curliness (or straightness) of your hair depends on the shape of the follicle, it's the disulphide bonds that keep the hair in the shape it was formed, and they can only be altered by perming or relaxing. Disulphide bonds also give your hair its elasticity and strength. Hydrogen bonds, on the other hand, are easily broken by the application of water and can be temporarily reset with heat until they become wet again (either from washing or humidity).

«At the hairdresser's»

- Do you have any precise idea what you would like?
- Can I have a look at your new catalogue to show you something I like?
- Sure. I think a chin length haircut will definitely suit you. Where do you have a parting?
- On the right side, please.

- I can see you have some dandruff. What products do you usually use on your hair?
- Yes, it's my big problem and I can't get rid of it. I brush my hair regularly and I use egg shampoos to make my hair less greasy. I have tried to shorten it, to wear a ponytail and braids, even to rinse it with beer. But it didn't do any good for my hair.

- Right. I'll just curl your ends to add some volume. Here we go!
- Wow! I can't recognize myself in the mirror! And I really like it! The layers and a short fringe on my forehead are very trendy, to my mind.
- I must say you look much younger with your new hair. Would you like to put some hairspray on your hair or maybe some fixing gel or a little wax?
- Some hairspray, please. Thank you very much.

- Hello. I'd like to have a haircut, please. Do I have to book in advance?
- Good morning. That's not necessary at the moment. I am available.
- My hair is not quite fresh. So I would like to have it washed first, please.
- No problem. Is the temperature of the water OK with you?
- Yes, it's fine, thanks. Not too cold, not too hot.

5.

- You should use a special anti-dandruff care for your hair and scalp at least once a week. And your hair will soon become sleek. Would you like to have it dyed?
- Actually, I prefer to keep my natural colour. But I'm going to have some highlights next time.
- OK then. Your haircut is ready. Would you like me to blow-dry it?
- No, thanks. My hair is too fragile, you know.

A haircut

It was time for a haircut. Lenny didn't even have to look in the mirror. Even though he was going bald, he knew that he needed to cut his hair every two weeks.

He had a "tongue" of hair on the top of his head. His hair was thinning at the crown. He still had plenty of hair on the sides and back. It was what they call "salt and pepper," a mixture of gray hair and dark brown hair. It was only a few years, he figured, until the salt and pepper became just salt.

He never let his hair grow for more than two weeks. The longer it got, the worse it looked, he thought.

He spread a newspaper over the bathroom sink so that no hair went down the drain. He plugged in the clippers and started cutting his hair. He started at the back of his head, went to the sides, and finished on the top. Every minute or so, he had to clean the hair out of the blades with an old toothbrush.

Finished, he picked up a hand mirror to check out the back of his head. Everything looked okay. He carried the newspaper back out to the kitchen and shook the hair clippings into the trash can.

Then he took a shower.

HAIR COLOURING

The hair-colouring market is enormous. It's estimated that almost 70% of women and 12% of men will colour their hair at some point in their life. Colouring your hair can give you a psychological boost and a sense of being a new and younger person. It's an easy way to change your personality or to discard part of an old life for a new one – changing hair colour after a break-up, for example. Hair colour preference is also influenced by fashion, usually following celebrities. Hair was dyed red with Rita Hayworth and blonde with Marilyn Monroe. In Cleopatra's day dark hair was all the rage and during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I, ginger hair was popular. But which ever colour you decide on, you need to take precautions. All colouring processes are potentially harmful if the instructions on the packaging aren't followed, or if you don't take proper steps to hydrate and care for your hair afterwards.

CARING FOR COLOUR-TREATED HAIR

All chemical processes reduce the elasticity (stretchability) of your hairs and increase their chances of breakage. Therefore, any hair that has been dyed/coloured is vulnerable to damage. However, the degree of damage that occurs largely depends on the amount of colour change. For instance, going from a dark shade to a light shade is more damaging because the colouring (bleaching) agent is stronger and/or left on for longer. How often you colour your hair is also a factor to consider. Having your hair coloured in a salon will most probably involve some sort of conditioning treatment, but if you colour your hair at home make sure you have a good conditioner handy. Choose a well-formulated conditioner designed specifically for your hair type to keep your hair both feeling and looking great after colouring. You should also use a pre-shampoo conditioning treatment at least once a week, depending on the condition of your hair. For severely dry and damaged hair, use twice. Please note: always leave three days before and also after your colouring process to use an intensive conditioning treatment - they have the ability to fade your colour if done too soon. However, this does not apply to highlights or bleach without tint.

Shaving the head

Shaving for the first time produced in the direction of hair growth and, therefore, it is necessary to start from the top.

At first process a parietal site of a hair covering of the head. The razor must be held by the first reception. During shaving, it should glide smoothly over the scalp, and the slope of the razor blade to the skin should not exceed 15-20°.

For a smoother and easier hair cutting razor should be moved on the skin not the entire plane of its cutting edge towards the cut section of hair, and at some angle (30-40°), so that the razor head as if constantly wedged into the treated area of hair.

Thus, cutting hair, shaving is not only due to the pressure by the sting of the razor on the hair, but the result of some movement of the razor along the plane of the sting – like mowing the hair.

Shaving is accompanied by pulling the skin in the opposite direction of movement of the razor side.

The shaving sequence of each section of the hair is as follows: the first treated parietal area of the hair, starting from the top, then the area of the right temple, the occipital part of the head and neck and then the area of the left temple. Thus, starting from the parietal area, clockwise, process on the first time each site of hair.

After a second application of lather to the hair shaving is carried out for the second time against the hair growth. The General direction shaving-from peripheral sites to the center (top). The sequence of processing of each area is the same as when shaving the first time.

In the processing of horizontal sections of scalp and lower right occipital area in the neck area razor should keep the first appointment, during the processing of the remaining sections of the second.

THE HAIR BULB

The hair bulb is a structure of actively growing cells which eventually produce hair. Cells continually divide in the lower part of the bulb and push upwards, gradually hardening. When they reach the upper part of the bulb they arrange themselves into six cylindrical layers. The three inner layers become the hair, made up of the cuticle, the cortex and the medulla – although the medulla isn't always present, especially in hairs with a thinner diameter. The outer three layers become the lining of the follicle and form the inner root sheath and basement membrane, around which lie undifferentiated cells. Specific cells in the hair bulb, called melanocytes, make the pigment called melanin that gives your hair its colour. It's very important to understand the hair growth cycle in order to recognize and understand many of the problems you can encounter with your hair. The hair growth cycle consists of three distinct stages – anagen, catagen and telogen.

HAIR SHAFT

Your hair shaft is the part of your hair that can be seen above your scalp. It's made of a protein called keratin, compacted and cemented together. Keratin is a remarkably strong protein, which is very resistant to wear and tear. It is in fact the same material that feathers, claws, nails and hoofs are composed of! Keratin is a sulphur-rich protein, with strong disulphide bonds holding the protein strands together. This plays an important role in any chemical processing like perming and relaxing, as these break disulphide bonds and reset them to a different configuration to change the shape of your hair. Your hair shaft also consists of hydrogen bonds, which help to give your hair its flexibility. They are weaker and more numerous than disulphide bonds and are easily broken with the application of water. This is what allows you to temporarily change the natural configuration of your hair with heated styling aids after washing. Your hair shaft consists of three layers: the cuticle, the cortex, the medulla.

Every woman wants to look good, attract other people's attention and be charming.

Beauty salons are there to help them out. Nowadays salons are very popular among women and even men.

Men come to the salons to get their hair cut, get manicure done, get some tan or enjoy the massage.

Today salons are like a complex place that provides different services. Hairstylists, nails technicians, make-up artists, cosmetologists and massage therapists are all working under the same roof. In some salons you can even consult medical specialists and use a salt room and have some therapeutic programs done.

My mother loves visiting beauty salons. She gets her hair done by hairstylist quite often, gets her nails and toenails fixed. She also knows the cosmetologist and she's been using her services every now and then for several years already.

Sometimes my mother and I are going to the salon together. I get my hair cut and styled for some special occasion or get a facial. My mother lets me to get my nails done from time to time but she doesn't allow me to choose colors that are too bright. I try to make her let me to use sun booth but she is intransigent about that because she thinks it's bad for your health.

I think the wide range of beauty services helps women to look pretty and young at any age. And this is awesome! It helps some girls to get rid of their inhibitions. Especially when it comes to skin problems that are common for teenagers.

Fashion

Fashion is a part of our daily life and a perfect way of self-expression. There are a number of factors that can influence the way teenagers dress. First of all, young people tend to imitate their idols. Some celebrities are considered to be trendsetters for most teenagers. For instance, Paris Hilton launched her trendy clothing line. At the event, Paris personally helped to style each of her fans. Another motivating factor is fashion magazines. Teens want to look like glamorous cover-girls and muscular sun-tanned guys. Moreover, children are reflections of their parents. That is why most of teenagers adopt the same style of garments that their parents wear. It is necessary to mention that many teenagers rebel against their parents by wearing outrageous clothes and hairstyles. This is especially true for scandalous clothing and piercings. Besides, by wearing a style associated with a particular group, many teenagers feel they belong to that group. For instance, one of the latest teenagers' trends in fashion is the EMO style which is characterized by a mixture of gothic and punk styles. Emos have black dyed hair with brightly colored highlights and piercings on weird places like lips, tongue or eyebrows. They prefer brightly colored clothes, which help them to stand out in a crowd.

Nowadays there are many styles of clothing. So, clothes and colors should fit the occasion when they are worn. In the wardrobe of every teenager there should be casual clothing, school uniforms, sportswear, house wear, sleeping garments and Sunday wear. For instance, school uniforms should be simple and comfortable. Students must shine with their knowledge and exert themselves rather than organize a fashion show. School uniforms prevent bullying among peers, because all the students are wearing the same outfit and no one is left standing out. So, if your parents can't afford to spend 16,000 rubles on a pair of brand-name jeans, there is no reason for worries anymore.

As far as I am concerned, I prefer casual style in clothes. I tend to wear jeans, T-shirts, sneakers and rompers. The most important thing for me is to look stylish, no matter how much money I can spend for my clothes. As is known, accessories have played a key role in fashion since ancient times. So, if you want to be a standout, simply put on attractive and appropriate fashion accessories, such as bracelets, rings, necklaces or watches. Besides, if you have a good hand in mixing different colors and know much about latest trends in fashion, you can create unique and chic fashion look yourself without the help of a professional stylist.

THE HAIR BULB

The hair bulb is a structure of actively growing cells which eventually produce hair. Cells continually divide in the lower part of the bulb and push upwards, gradually hardening. When they reach the upper part of the bulb they arrange themselves into six cylindrical layers. The three inner layers become the hair, made up of the cuticle, the cortex and the medulla – although the medulla isn't always present, especially in hairs with a thinner diameter. The outer three layers become the lining of the follicle and form the inner root sheath and basement membrane, around which lie undifferentiated cells. Specific cells in the hair bulb, called melanocytes, make the pigment called melanin that gives your hair its colour. It's very important to understand the hair growth cycle in order to recognize and understand many of the problems you can encounter with your hair. The hair growth cycle consists of three distinct stages – anagen, catagen and telogen.

HAIR SHAFT

Your hair shaft is the part of your hair that can be seen above your scalp. It's made of a protein called keratin, compacted and cemented together. Keratin is a remarkably strong protein, which is very resistant to wear and tear. It is in fact the same material that feathers, claws, nails and hoofs are composed of! Keratin is a sulphur-rich protein, with strong disulphide bonds holding the protein strands together. This plays an important role in any chemical processing like perming and relaxing, as these break disulphide bonds and reset them to a different configuration to change the shape of your hair. Your hair shaft also consists of hydrogen bonds, which help to give your hair its flexibility. They are weaker and more numerous than disulphide bonds and are easily broken with the application of water. This is what allows you to temporarily change the natural configuration of your hair with heated styling aids after washing. Your hair shaft consists of three layers: the cuticle, the cortex, the medulla.
